

A German Submarine Sinks An American Steamer

LATEST AFFRONT MAY BE ANSWER TO U. S. NOTE BERLIN JUST RECEIVED

SINKING OF STEAMSHIP LEELANAW OFF SCOTTISH COAST AGGRAVATES CRISIS WITH GERMANY.

NONE OF CREW KILLED

Vessel Carrying a Cargo of Flax From Archangel to Belfast, Torpedoed and Sunk on Sunday—Left New York in May.

(By Associated Press.) London, July 26.—The American steamship Leelanaw, 280 feet long and 2000 tons register, from Archangel, July 5, for Belfast, with a cargo of flax, was sunk July 25 by a German submarine off the northwest coast of Scotland.

All the members of the crew were saved. They were brought to Kirkwall in their own boats.

Carried Cotton to Russia.

The steamer left New York, May 17, with a cargo of cotton consigned to Russia, by way of Gotenburg. The vessel was detained at Kirkwall while inquiries were made as to the possibility of getting her cargo to Russia. Sweden forbids the export of cotton. The ship was released June 26, with permission to proceed to Archangel, where the cotton was discharged and a cargo of flax was loaded for Belfast.

No details of the torpedoing of the Leelanaw have been received beyond a message telling of the safety of the crew.

An official statement of the German government, issued April 18, 1915, sets forth that flax is a contraband of war. The Leelanaw was commanded by Captain D. B. Dalk. Her crew consisted of seven officers and thirty-two men, and her owners, the Harby Steamship company, of New York, planned to return her in ballast to this country.

Aggravates Situation.

Washington, July 26.—The torpedoing of the American steamer Leelanaw is a shock to American officials, and the incident further aggravates the situation between Germany and the United States.

Although they hesitated today in the absence of details to construct the act as coming within the warning of the last American note which points out that further violation of international law affecting American citizens would be regarded as "deliberately unfriendly" the view taken was that Germany in effect had ignored and disregarded an earlier note sent in connection with the sinking of the sailing ship William Frye, by the German converted cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

Similar to Frye Case.

Germany immediately admitted her liability under the foregoing article when the Frye was sunk and agreed to pay damages, but took the view that the sinking of the vessel was not "a violation" of the treaty but a right that had been intentionally granted by the treaty itself.

Germany replied, however, that she could not admit that the destruction of the Frye was a violation of a treaty.

Wilson Declines Comment.

Cornish, New Hampshire, July 26.—Official word of the sinking of the American steamship Leelanaw by a German submarine, was conveyed to President Wilson today, but he declined to make any comment for publication, pending receipt of full official details. The news that the crew of the steamer was saved was received with relief by members of the presidential party.

President Wilson always has kept his mind open to the possibility of German submarines until he receives a complete report of circumstances, and it was thought probably he would follow the same course in this case, although the president himself would give no indication of what would be done.

British Steamer Sunk.

London, July 26.—The British steamship Grangewood, 333 feet long, 3000 tons gross register, bound from Archangel, Russia, for Havre, France, was torpedoed and sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine. The crew landed today at Lerwick, Scotland.

BECKER'S ATTORNEYS URGE A NEW TRIAL

With Date for Execution Two Days Off, Eleventh Hour Effort Made to Secure a Stay.

(By Associated Press.) New York, July 26.—With the date set for the execution of Charles Becker but two days distant, his counsel and a representative of district attorney's office were preparing to argue before United States Court Judge Ford today the motion that Becker be granted a new trial.

NOTE FROM BRITAIN IS RECEIVED TODAY

Reply to United States' Protest to English Order-in-Council, Most Courteous in Tone.

Washington, July 26.—Great Britain's reply to the American note of March 30, protesting against enforcement of the order-in-council which restricts neutral commerce, was received here today. It holds that the orders are within international law, although they may involve a new application of principles and argues that it is proper to await a judicial interpretation.

The new note, in the most courteous language, holds that Great Britain's action is justified by the decisions of the United States supreme court in cases arising during the Civil war, although they may involve a new application of principles and argues that it is proper to await a judicial interpretation.

Secretary Lansing today announced receipt of the note, but made no announcement of its contents. It will be forwarded to President Wilson at Cornish, New Hampshire, and will be given out in Washington for publication in the morning papers, Wednesday.

DISREGARD WARNING ON BORDER BATTLES

If Mexican Force Attacks City Near Border Line American Troops Expected to Repel Them.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, July 26.—Major General Funston reported today that despite warnings to General Carranza and his assurances there would be no fighting in border towns endangering Americans, General Calles has assembled 2,000 Carranza troops at Santa Barbara, twenty miles from Nogales, and apparently was preparing to attack the border town.

General Funston has orders to repel with force any firing into American territory without waiting to refer the question to Washington.

If the Mexican factions battle there Funston's artillery is expected to shell them out to a safe distance from the border.

REACH A DEADLOCK IN BAYONNE STRIKE

Workmen Refuse to Accept Superintendent's Offer to Intercede in Their Behalf.

(By Associated Press.) New York, July 26.—A deadlock apparently had been reached today in the strike at the Standard Oil company's plant in Bayonne, N. J., where several thousand men from that and two other oil works were still idle. Although the "Standard Oil" company's superintendent had called upon the strikers to return to work today and promised if they did so he would make recommendation in their behalf to the company, the men rejected the offer and determined to continue the strike.

PLAN CONCRETE ROADS BETWEEN THE CITIES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milwaukee, Wis., July 26.—While good roads enthusiasts in Chicago were conferring on the representatives of cities along the proposed route of the Sheridan Drive, between Milwaukee and Chicago, boosters for this highway began an organized campaign which will be extended to Racine, Kenosha and other cities. The plan is to build a concrete road. The legal difficulties surrounding the construction of the road have been cleared up and the agitation begun today is expected to encompass actual work by next week.

Italian Activities.

Rome, July 25, via Paris, July 26.—An official statement issued tonight at headquarters of Italian general staff says:

"On the afternoon of July 23 two of our aeroplanes flew over the Riva in the Austrian Tyrol and dropped eight tons of bombs on the railway station with excellent results. The enemy's artillery fired upon the machines without causing any damage.

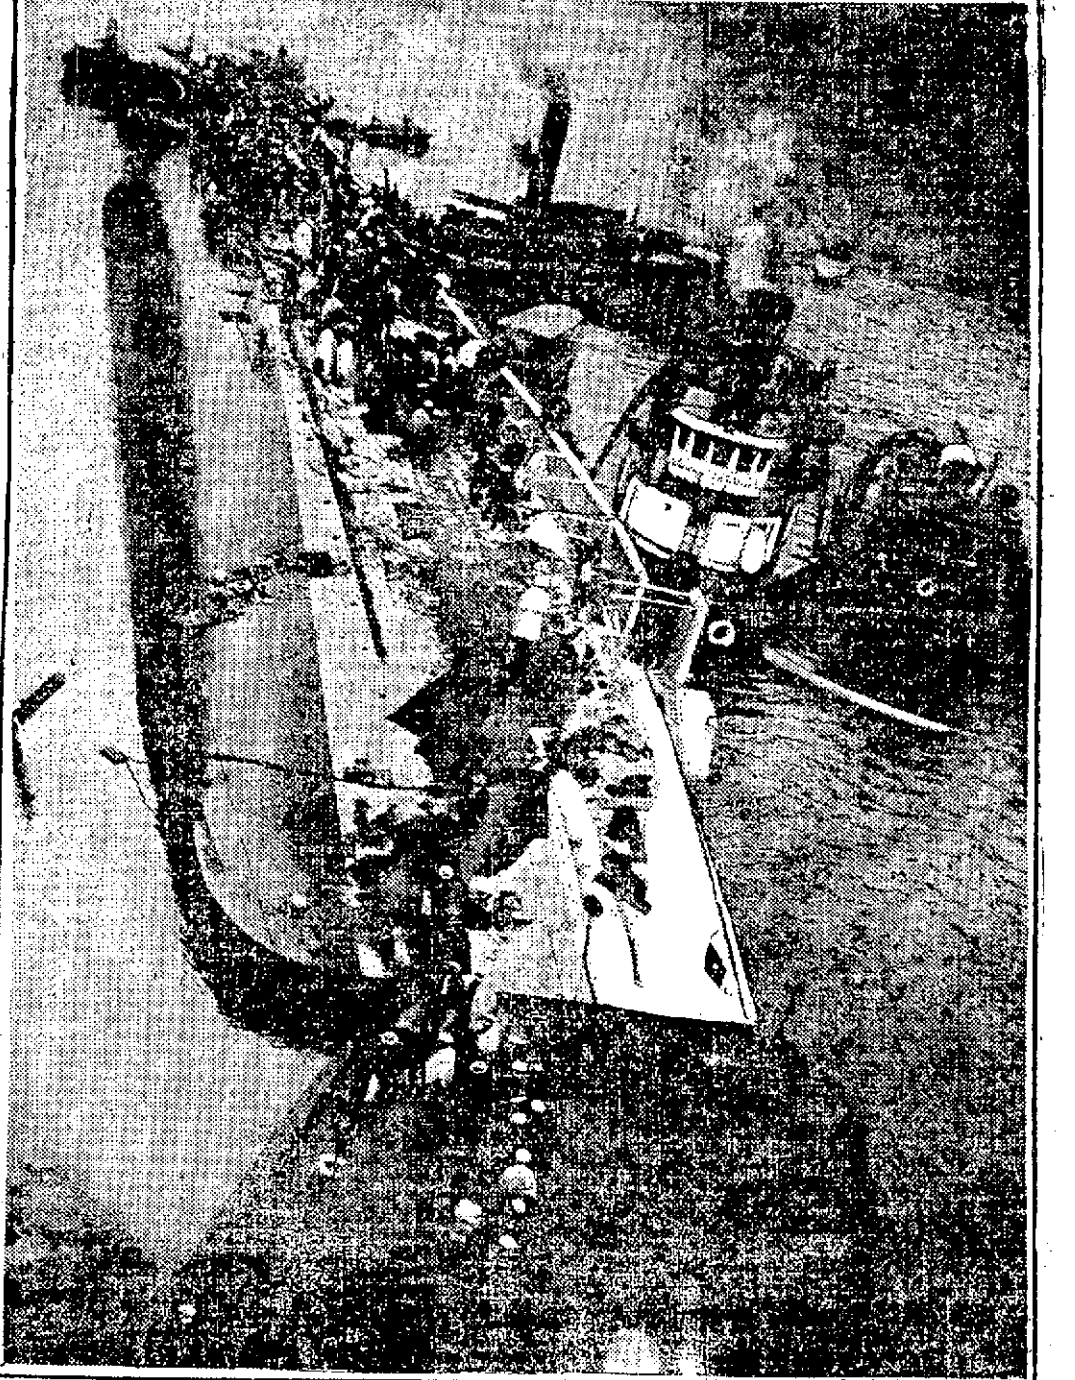

"In Carpi during the night of 24-25, enemy forces attacked our position at Somogno path, but were promptly repulsed.

"In the Monte Nero region the enemy tried to arrest our offensive, delivering three heavy attacks on positions conquered by us on the crest of Luzinica, but was repulsed by us with great losses.

"On the Carso plateau the action continued to develop favorably for us."

Wedding Bells: Licenses of marriage today were issued to Edward J. McCormick and Olive Elizabeth Cronse, both of Beloit; to Ludwig Gustafson of the town of Rock and Jennie E. Peterson of Clinton, and to David C. Smalley and Miss Carrie Jenkins, both of Beloit.

PROGRESS OF A YEAR OF VARIOUS NATIONS ENGAGED IN WARFARE

FRENCH, GERMAN AND ENGLISH ALL CLAIM SUCCESS OF VARYING DEGREES.

ACHIEVEMENT OF EACH

Twelve Months of Fighting Has Developed Individual Strength of Contending Nations—German Many Satisfied.

Paris, July 26.—"The great world war is one year old this week. What has France accomplished? Jean Cruppi, ex-minister of foreign affairs, member of the chamber of deputies and of the foreign relations commission, a man physically not very unlike Theodore Roosevelt, he replied:

"France accomplished the defeat of the Germans in the Battle of the Marne, she stopped the German drive for Calais and the sea; she has kept Germany nailed to the spot for ten months, steadily reducing her by attrition; she has done many other big things, but the greatest of all was the dropping of internal differences, her unification of all classes with one great, fixed purpose in view, 'Victory.'"

"Yes," he continued earnestly, "our word union means something more than the harmony of our people; there is something of the sacred in it. This sacred union will last. France is as one man with one idea: final success, what it may. The war, no doubt, will be long, but the courage and patience of our people will be equal to the task of seeing it through."

France's Work.

In short perhaps the greatest accomplishment to France's credit in the last twelve months is that she has found herself.

To appreciate fully M. Cruppi's words one has but to glance back at the France of the years just preceding the war; France, the antithesis of Germany where collectively is the national passion; France, the nation of individuals, workers and thinkers where no two people could be expected to agree on any subject.

In the chamber of deputies there are a score or more parties, but in the case of France as in the case of the United States, The Dreyfus affair split the nation into two hostile camps and each camp into others with varying opinions. The Calais case, was on all sides and in high places; among political leaders, so it was intimated, one was as bad as another, or worse if it was possible, which it was not. The theatre gave the impression that even French home life was rotten.

Below the Surface.

The things one saw and heard in Paris gave one a rather gloomy feeling—that is if he believed all he saw and heard. One got the idea that patriotism was a lost emotion in France. Some said the revolutionaries had the upper hand among the socialists and that the socialists were running things. Labor, they said, was ruling capital, and labor and socialists, by their general strike doctrine, had their hands at the throat of the nation. The Gustave Hervey were the real masters of the land, and Gustave Hervey, you remember, editor of the Social War, spent a time in prison because he advocated a general strike, or rebellion, among the soldiers in the event France should go to war with another nation.

In short the world, too busy to go below the surface of things, considered France too highly educated. The individual had too much sense, too much imagination. He could talk, he could not fight. Should a foreign power jump on France, Frenchmen would argue among themselves what ought to be done, each man advocating something different, while French front men, real and ideal, would be shot down their officers.

Germany undoubtedly had some such idea. She expected to find France unprepared and French opinion divided, a great national schism developing the moment there was serious talk of war, or a revolution after the first success of French arms.

But what happened? The real France found herself. The nation's heart, so long hidden, was revealed, and to the last man France became a unit. As M. Cruppi remarked, nothing has shaken this unity since.

The moment the general mobilization order was posted in France all classes rallied to the tri-color. Labor became a great national schism. The German people believed the events of the past twelve months have demonstrated to the world that the Teutons are the mightiest race of all history. No other country could have withstood the combination of world powers which Germany has kept at bay since last August, declare the Germans, and no other country has ever so kept stirred the imagination of the world.

Germany has won her claim to a place in the sun. The German empire has added brilliant chapters to the history of Teutonic might begun under the Hohenzollerns of the Kingdom of Prussia. The Kaiser himself has earned for himself the title of William the Great, which posterity surely will bestow upon him. These are the dominant beliefs of the German people at the close of the first year of the war.

Germany's Show Up.

Germany's show up the world in all its littleness, and all its boastings of false greatness. Only the Germans themselves have withstood the test of blood and iron for only the Germans have gained victories during

GERMANS IN POLAND CROSS NAREW RIVER ON WAY TO WARSAW

ADVANCE OF INVADERS TO NORTH OF POLISH CAPITAL CONTINUES ON A WIDE FRONT.

MAKE STUBBORN STAND

Russians Continue to Control Strategic Fortress of Ostrolenka in North as Well as Lublin—Chelm Lines in South.

(By Associated Press.)

London, July 26.—Fighting for Warsaw has shifted from south Poland, where the most desperate efforts of Field Marshal Von Mackensen have been making to win any appreciable advance, to the north of the Polish capital, where the Germans have crossed the Narew river along a wide front.

Retrospect so far has not admitted German success. It also is still apparent, London military observers say, that the Ostrolenka fortress from which radiates the useful strategic railroad, continues to be controlled by the Russians, although the attack of the Germans from Pultusk northward has brought them to a point south of Ostrolenka.

To the southward the Germans are attacking the defense line near Piasczno, which is twelve miles from Warsaw. That the situation in the capital is becoming more precarious is indicated by the news that the Russians are withdrawing all men and material for the manufacture of munitions from the country.

The Austro-German troops, Russian advisers say, not only are being held along this line, but are suffering under fierce counter attacks.

Except for the confirmation of the French success in the Vosges mountains, which resulted in the capture of eight hundred Germans, Paris reports only artillery and mine warfare along the western front.

Some uneasiness is being caused in diplomatic circles of the entente allies by the report, not yet officially confirmed, that Turkey has ordered to Bulgaria the Turkish portion of the De-dagatch railroad. Sofia reports this action will have no effect on Bulgarian neutrality, but the belief is expressed here that Turkey would not be likely to give up such valuable territory without the promise of, substantial aid from Bulgaria.

Favorable Comment on Note.

The English newspapers comment with warm approval on the American note to Germany, but two leading organs express some concern over the paragraph which under conditions promises co-operation with Germany in securing freedom of seas.

1,080 PERSONS KILLED IN EASTLAND TRAGEDY, ESTIMATE OF CORONER

TWO HUNDRED BODIES ARE STILL UNRECOVERED IN HULL OF STEAMER SAY RESCUERS.

BEGIN INVESTIGATIONS

State and Federal Machinery Set in Motion to Probe Causes of Chicago River Horror.—Boat Overloaded, Is Charge.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, July 26.—Divers engaged in rescue work reported to Coroner Hoffman today they believed there were about 200 bodies still in the hull of the Eastland, many of which are in such a position they cannot be taken out until the vessel is raised.

Total Dead 1,080.

The total number of bodies recovered from the steamer Eastland was announced by Coroner Hoffman at 3:10 at one o'clock this afternoon. His figures show the total number of lives lost would probably reach 1,080, as follows:

Number of bodies recovered, 810

Number of missing reported to Western Electric company, 270.

All but nine of the bodies recovered have been identified. It is estimated that there are still two hundred bodies in the hull of the steamer.

After questioning members of the Eastland's crew and scores of eye witnesses, Mr. Hoynes and his assistants expressed the opinion that the accident was caused by overloading the boat. United States District Attorney Clyne, after conferring with federal steamboat inspectors, said:

"When the time comes for us to talk we will have plenty to say."

In all probability no state grand jury action will be taken until after the coroner's inquest has been completed, according to State's Attorney Hoynes. He said he would obtain a court order to have the July grand jury continue in session to investigate the disaster.

The work of searching the submerged interior of the boat and dragging the river for victims progressed slowly. At noon three additional bodies had been recovered.

To Raise Boat at Once.

Arrangements were completed for raising the steamer immediately, and dynamiting the river bed to release bodies that may have been stuck in the mud. The Western Electric company today began the preparation of a list of its missing employees and when this task is completed it will be possible to make an accurate estimate of the number of lives lost on the Eastland.

At noon Coroner Hoffman reported that 800 bodies had been recovered. The Western Electric company's list of missing contains 178 names, and this is being added to hourly as the heads of the various departments report. Coroner Hoffman believes the total number of dead will reach 1,200 if the estimate of the divers on the number of bodies still in the boat proves correct.

The investigations undertaken by the federal state, county and city officials are being steadily pushed in an effort to fix responsibility for the Eastland disaster.

P. H. Avery, in charge of the divers engaged in the rescue work, said today his men were able to see many bodies in the hull which they were unable to reach. After talking with the men working under water, he formed his estimate of 200 bodies still in the boat.

Relief Work Under Way.

Relief work to meet the immediate needs and distress caused by the Eastland disaster was continued today under direction of Mayor Thompson's advisory committee and the local chapter of the Red Cross society. Persons in every trade and industry are contributing to the relief fund. It was announced that $150,000 had already been pledged and the remainder of the $300,000 it is planned to raise will be available within thirty-six hours.

John Davis, a fruit merchant, told Edwin J. Raber, assistant state's attorney, that he and another man standing on the Eastland's wharf called Captain Pederson's attention to the fact that the ship was listing badly.

"Five minutes before the Eastland turned over we saw she was listing dangerously, and we cried to Captain Pederson we thought her position dangerous," Davis said. "The captain paid no attention whatever to us, and five minutes later the ship keeled over."

The first funeral services for the victims were held today, when more than 300 corteges passed through the streets of this city. These solemn processions will become familiar to the passers-by before the week is over, for arrangements have been made to hold the services for some of the victims on every day this week. A large part of the funerals held today were for the victims who lived in the neighborhood of the Western Electric company's plant, and in several instances the same service was said over two and three victims, members of the same family.

Federal Investigation. Federal investigation required by law of the local board of steamboat inspectors in such cases, deals only with questions of carelessness if any, or incompetency of licensed officers and with the judgment of the inspectors in passing the vessel on inspection.

Mr. Sweet expressed the belief today that there would be an investigation with a broader scope, conducted by men in whom the public would have the greatest confidence, because of their standing and experience.

Should Secretary Redfield decide not to appoint a special board it is probable that Solicitor Thurman of the department will be sent to Chicago to assist in the inquiries by the local board. Any assistance the solicitor might extend would be in the nature of advice, as the local board is entirely independent of higher authorities during its investigation.

Gregory's Orders. Attorney Gregory, ordered agents of the department of justice to assist United States Attorney Clyne in investigating the sinking of the Eastland to determine whether there were violations of federal criminal statutes.

STOLEN PIN FOUND ON STREET GIVES POLICE NEW CLUE

Part of the Loot from Brownell Home Recovered in Peculiar Manner.

With the finding of one of the missing pieces of jewelry taken from the residence of Mrs. C. Brownell last week, when the house was ransacked by thieves on the street near the Y. M. C. A. building, the police have a new clue to the robbery. Lists of stolen property have been forwarded to police of various cities.

Recently the police recovered a valuable diamond ring for a Broadhead man, who had been missing for some months ago and this morning the chief recovered a sixty-five dollar diamond pin that had been sold for a small sum of money to a local youth, who gave it up to the police and it was returned to its owner.

BICK YOUTH KNOWS HIS MOTHER TODAY

First Symptoms of Consciousness Appeared Today With Parent at Bedside.

The condition of Quinton Bick, the nine year old youth who suffered a fractured skull in a fall from his bicycle Friday noon, is still undetermined, Mercy Hospital attendants report. The youth is still unconscious. Asked whether the child might be expected to recover, the attending physician, Mrs. F. J. Bick, if he knew her, he noddingly assented that he did, but insisted as being conscious at any other time, the youth had shown no symptoms. Attending surgeons still entertain hopes for his recovery. The trepanning of the skull, in which a small piece was used to cover the hole, proved to be a failure, and as on Saturday the doctors state that unless some condition arises to bring on a schubar, the youth had a chance of recovery.

Dull Days In Business

An advertiser asks: "Does it pay to advertise in dull seasons?"

And this causes the inquiry: "What are dull seasons?" "Surely," Would they be dull if you really went after business—or are they dull because "they have always been that way?" For many months—August used to be dull furniture months—now they are the brightest in the year.

Similar examples are to be found all through the merchandise calendar. Very often advertising and merchandising mixed with the right proportion of brains will eliminate the "dull days."

WORDS DEVELOPMENT LIKE SEED MATURING

UNION SERVICE SPEAKER LIKENS AGRICULTURAL HARVEST TO THAT OF THE SPIRITUAL.

SPEAKS FROM ST. MARK

Parable of the Blade, the Ear, Then the Corn Is Used as Text for Topic Full of Rich Interest.

Following the organ prelude, a hymn by the congregation, the reading of the Scripture lesson by the Rev. T. D. Williams of the Methodist church and the prayer by the Rev. Joseph C. Hart, the Rev. George Edwin Parisee delivered a powerful sermon, taking his text from St. Mark, 11: 26-29. "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear," at the Congregational church union services last evening.

Rev. Parisee spoke as follows: This parable is recorded by Mark and is one peculiar to him and contains a message that ought to be deeply interesting to all who have reason to hope that they are true. Its message sets before us the history of the work of grace in the individual soul and summons us to examine our own experiences in spiritual things.

The earth never brings forth corn of itself. As a mother of weeds, not of wheat, and the hand of man must sow it and scatter the seed, or else there will be no harvest. The germinating principle exists not in the seed alone, but in the soil as well as the wheat; the berry of the deadly nightshade as well as the acorn of the majestic oak; the seed of the poisonous hemlock as well as the shoot of harmless vines. Even so an evil word spoken or a dark suggestion insinuated or a false doctrine taught, these will produce fruits of their kind as surely as the truth will reproduce itself and bring forth results of righteousness and peace of heart.

"The heart of man will never of itself turn to God; repent, believe and obey. It is utterly barren of grace. It is entirely dead towards God and unable to give itself spiritual life. No labor need be put into the heart of a child with the doctrine of disobedience or selfishness. The moral atmosphere around him is laden with the influence of his parents. There is in the child a soil for the reception of such things.

"You have heard of wheat found in the case of an Egyptian mummy; many centuries it had lain there without growing for it had not there those circumstances which are indispensable to growth. But when it was planted in the soil where it could have the influence of the earth, heat, light, moisture, it very soon sprang, bringing forth in harvest many fold. In the same way the word of God will not grow in the heart unless it is outside of a heart it takes no root in man. It must be held, not by the cold grasp of a dead hand, but by the warm embrace of a living and believing heart.

"There can be no spiritual growth unless the word is believingly received into the heart. What a man believes in, that he grows to be; believe he in selfishness, he will become selfish; believe he in pleasure, he becomes a pleasure seeker, but if he believes in Christ, he will become of Christ.

"The wisest farmer cannot explain all that takes place in the grain of wheat. He knows that it grows. He knows the broad fact that it places the seed in the ground, covers it up, the rains descend, the sun pours out its warmth and that there will be a harvest. He cannot explain the instructions to its growth which appear in the shape of weeds but he cannot make the seed grow nor command it to produce. He cannot explain why some seeds die, others come up and mature. He cannot specify the hour or the minute when life shall begin to stir in it. He cannot tell what life is. These are matters he must leave to God. He sows the seed and leaves the increase to God. God gives the increase.

"Workings of grace in the heart in like manner are utterly mysterious and unsearchable. We cannot explain why the word of God has some influence in one person in a congregation and is hidden from us. We see certain results but we can go no further.

"The plant goes through many stages before it arrives to perfection. 'First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear.' In its growth these are easily recognized. In all nature we have the blade, blossom, fruit in human life, the babe, child, youth, and manhood. We may not be able to discover just when one of these stages passes to the other, but we can recognize each when we see it. Just so in the true character, we have the different stages.

"And we ought not to look for certain qualities of character too soon, or out of their due and proper course. You cannot have the ear before the blade nor the harvest just when the ear does appear. The secret of the spiritual harvest lies in the union of the believer with Christ. This is not only the ground of our hope of pardon, but the source of the strength whereby we die unto sin and live unto righteousness. It is being rooted in the ground of Christ, that we are enabled to comprehend the breadth, the length, the depth, and the height of the mystery of redemption.

"Our union with Christ is not only the source of spiritual life, but also that means by which the Christian life is maintained and developed. It is inconsistent to suppose that we can experience a Christian life and grow without being joined with Christ by the living faith. Prayer is a natural expression of our faith.

"One hour's self-forgetting communion with God produces an impression never to be forgotten. We are made clean through the word of Christ; hark again by the word of truth; changed into the image of God; beholding His glory. The more the word of God is brought to our minds, the more we commune with it, enter into its wisdom, applying its lessons to our life, appropriating its principles, appreciating its motives, rejoicing in its promises; trembling at its threatening unseen, the eternal. The more we may expect to be transformed by the renewing of our minds, so to approve the love that is ever holy, just and good.

"The sowing of the seed of God's word should be done with much prayer, for the sowing is our part, the sowing of the seed to grow is God's. There is nothing in which we can engage that will yield a richer increase than the sowing of the seed, the word of God. The Lord is not stinted in his blessing. We sow in single grains; we reap in full ears. We sow in handfuls; we reap in bushels. We sow in days, we reap in years of eternity.

"There is joy in sowing, but far deeper joy in seeing the seed springing up. But the richest joy in the harvest home is the gathering of the ripe grain. One thing that we are sure of, a harvest of some sort there will be, for we are all sowing now.

"Our ingathering shall be a blessing or it shall be that described in such terrible language of the prophet: 'Because thou hast forgotten the God of thy salvation hast not been mindful of the rock of thy strength, therefore plannest pleasant things, thou shalt see thy garden with strange fires. In the day of thy planting thou hast sown seed to blossom, but the harvest thou shalt reap in the day of grief and desperate sorrow. Be ye not deceived. God is not mocked, for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. He that soweth to the flesh, shall reap the flesh; he that soweth to the spirit, shall reap eternal life.'

PLACES WANTED FOR FRESH AIR CHILDREN FOR TWO WEEKS' STAY

Summer Club of Household Economics Would Like to Bring Thirty Chicago Waifs Here for Outing.

An appeal is made to the charitable inclined residents of Janesville and the immediate territory to aid in the labor of love at giving a genuine pleasure to some thirty Chicago little people, who live in the tenement districts of the great city. The Summer Club of Household Economics is behind the movement and the special committee for that organization, Miss Eleanor King and Mrs. G. H. Rumrill, make an earnest appeal for aid in placing these little waifs where they can enjoy the delicious fresh air, have good food and a genuine vacation outing. Mrs. Rumrill stated this morning that already places had been provided for nineteen, one more than last year, but that they had hoped to bring thirty children this year and would like assistance in finding places for the rest. It is a work that would be a pleasure to many, and if persons having such places will notify either Miss King or Mrs. Rumrill their assistance will be most thankfully received. It may be possible that there are places where the children could be accommodated for a small sum of money for the two weeks' stay. August 1st to August 15th. The committee would be glad to hear from any such providing that the charge be made five dollars for the two weeks. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, at Chicago, Sunday after the meeting of the party and they will leave Chicago August 4th.

JANESVILLE TEAM DEFEATS THE EDGERTON WHITE SOX

Edgerton, July 26.—Yesterday afternoon at the Edgerton Driving Park the Janesville Red Sox defeated the Edgerton White Sox by a score of 7 to 3. The Janesville team played an excellent game and did excellent basing. The Edgerton team played very weak on this point. While they were able to get the hits, they were unable to run bases. Kaksuke, Janesville pitcher, pitched a great game and won the catch. Ted Taylor, Edgerton pitcher, pitched a great game and did good work with the stick, Tallard getting the longest safe hit in the game. The game was won by a large sized crowd was on hand to witness it.

The Tobacco City Nationals were defeated by the Chicago Sox by a score of 5 to 3. The game was fast and the Edgerton boys played superior ball. WIFE TO GET WAGES RULES THE COURT

Italian Before Court for Wife Desertion.—Russell Angell Charged With Serious Offense.

Troubles of Janesville's small Italian colony were settled in the municipal court this morning when Frank Gulick was arraigned on the charge of wife desertion, on complaint of Ralph Palmer, section boss. When the case was called Palmer related to the court that Gulick had left his wife in most destitute circumstances and departed with his entire wages for Chicago. Palmer being the champion of the Italian section forced proof for the woman and her small daughter and swore out a warrant for the missing husband. He was located in Chicago and brought back by Sheriff Chamberlain last Friday.

Attorney E. H. Ryan appeared for the defendant, and when Palmer told of the facts of the case, between the jibbering interruptions of the victim in protest, the court adjourned the case thirty days with the understanding that Gulick's wages be paid to his wife during this time.

Russell Angell, an aged Janesville man, was brought into court this morning on a warrant sworn out by District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie alleging a charge of a revolting nature. Angell's case was adjourned one week and during that time he will be examined as to his sanity. He was committed to the county jail.

PLAYGROUND NINES PLAYING SCHEDULE

Have Interesting Diamond Battles Among Playground Teams.

Standings of Teams.

During the past week the interest in the playground league was increased by the winning of games by the Webster and Adams school teams. These two victories place the Fourth Ward nine in the lead with the Adams school ball tossers but one game behind. The Washington playground is in third position followed by the Jefferson who are reposing in last place with a zero percentage.

The Washington and the Adams clash in their second meeting. The Adams won by the score of nine to eight in the first game in a ninth inning rally. The first warders have strengthened their lineup and expect to cop the honors in the game. Wednesday the Webster and Jefferson will play at the Jefferson grounds.

Following are the standings:—

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Webster	3	0	1.000
Adams	2	1	.667
Washington	1	2	.333
Jefferson	0	3	.000

About seventy-five boys and girls from the Jefferson and the Webster school playgrounds went on the hike last Thursday to Crystal Springs. The start was made at nine o'clock from the Court House Park from where the children walked the entire distance to spend the day. During the afternoon baseball games were played which proved very exciting. A game was scheduled between the girls teams from the two schools but because of the failure of three of the girls to appear the game was called off.

Because of the large number of boys at the Webster school a league has been organized, composed of four teams. Great interest is being shown in the race. Games are being played each day thus allowing the nines to meet each other several times during the playground season. The teams and captains are, Cubs, Harold Vick, captain; Braves, Charles Rick, captain; Athletics, Donald Dawson, captain; Giants, Charles Gokey, captain. Following are the standings of the teams:—

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Cubs	2	0	1.000
Braves	1	1	.500
Athletics	1	1	.500
Giants	0	2	.000

JANESVILLE RED SOX DEFEAT EVANSVILLE TEAM

Skilled pitching by Kakuske brought victory to the Janesville Red Sox Sunday, when they downed the Edgerton White Sox at Edgerton, by the score of 7 to 3. The Red Sox got the jump of the game in the first inning when Purinton drove in a run with a two base hit and counted with the Edgerton second baseman allowing the ball to slip through him. He was spiked in an attempt to recover the ball and the attention of a physician was necessary. In the fifth the Janesville nine had the score 3 to 0, and Edgerton started scoring. Trevore was replaced by Schumaker for the White Sox. Kakuske, Red Sox pitcher, has not lost a game in his career and the team expects to see him put a win over the strong Black Hawk nine next Sunday.

HARMONY WINS FROM WILLOWDALE SLUGGERS BY THE SCORE, 9 TO 5

The Harmony nine added another victory to their long list Sunday when they defeated the Willowdale Sluggers by the score of 9 to 5 at the afternoon baseball games were played which proved very exciting. A game was scheduled between the girls teams from the two schools but because of the failure of three of the girls to appear the game was called off.

ALLIS LOOKS LIKE GOLF TITLE WINNER

Number of Other State Stars Expected to Give Him Hard Combat for Final Honors.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 25.—E. P. Allis III loomed up here today as the most likely candidate for the state golf championship when a long string of players began playing today at the Blue Mound Country club course. The tournament this year is bigger and faster than in previous years.

Janesville, Beloit, Manitowish, Wisconsin, La Crosse, Eau Claire and Sheboygan have large entries in this year's tournament, among them some men who might possibly make a good showing against the men picked as champions. Gordon Gilbert, the new Racine club champion, who defeated Fred Pettit, twice a state champion, has shown promising form throughout the year but it is believed his age, he is only 13, will handicap him when it comes to a long contest with such hardened veterans as Allis.

The Blue Mound club has produced one player whom many are touting as being equal to Allis. He is Fred Zwaska, who is regularly making the course around bogey. He will have the obvious advantage over Allis in playing on his home course and he knows the hazards better than any other player entered.

Production of war munitions in Kenosha may rob the tournament of two favorites of former years from that city. Gordon Yule and Malcolm Kehlor have been engaged in the business affairs of Kenosha to such an extent this year that they have had no time for golf and it is probable that they will not appear. Dick Anderson, who took the championship to Kenosha last year, is also playing along with C. C. Allen and Dick Cavanaugh.

The Allis-Peter-Films contest was started this morning and the Yule cup match this afternoon. Teams of five players from victory. The line-ups were as follows: Harmony, F. Waldman, G. Wright, P. Doran, B. Cohen, G. Van Hise, B. Brown, B. G. Williams, H. Ostie, E. Brown, P. Tracy, B. Boehls, B. Foley, B. Eastman, S. Goldsmith, R. Mooney, C. and Beasdale, H.

Those three cheers and a buzzer you don't hear were the Cincinnati fans welcoming the announcement that C Webb Murphy may buy the Reds next year.

CARDINALS EVEN UP COUNT WITH BELOIT

JANESVILLE TEAM WITH STICKERS DEFEAT FAIRIES IN EXCITING TILT.

WIN BY SCORE OF 4 TO 1

Fuck Outpitched Tillie By Wide Margin—Home Run By Curtis in Ninth Clinched the Game.

Hats off to Bob Fuck, the Madison "Zip" boy, for he alone brought victory to the Janesville Cardinals, and a very exciting Louisville victory it was, over the fast Beloit F. M. A. A. team Sunday afternoon at Beloit by the score of 4 to 1. These joyful statistics brought the immense amount of pleasure to all Janesville fans interested in baseball, and the Cardinals obtained full revenge for the 2 to 1 victory they the "Fairies" were lucky to get away with a couple of weeks back.

Before about four thousand fans the Cardinals took the measure of the Fairies in such a convincing manner that there was no room left for dispute but that the Janesville team had it all over the Beloit club Sunday. Fuck came near being the whole wonder for he never pitched a better game in his career and for a truly scratch hit in the seventh inning, he would have achieved the most notable feat in baseball—a no hit game. Not only was he galloping away with the glad some victory through his hitting but he spoiled the Beloit scenery with three lusty wallopers, one of them a double which scored one run in the seventh inning. The last three times at bat he whaled out hits, and the last two helped to roll up that vital score. All he had to do was to stick to the groove and the Beloit men broke their backs, and when he pitched that bookish underhand curve, the bat and horseshoe never came within a mile of touching. Ten of the Beloit swatsmen did the Gus Hill act, and when the situation became desperate Fuck would simply have the old ball just a mile faster, and the danger was over.

"Bloie" The Homer. But that is not all, for the real feat of the game was in the fact that when the score stood 1 to 0 in the Cardinals' favor. With two down the Cards staged a brilliant batting rally that would have made the author of "Dick Mene" a novel look like a "piker." Fuck singled and went to second when the Beloit fielders did not relay the ball to catch the feet of the runner. Then up stepped the Honorable Mr. Curtis of Belvidere to the plate and with the count two strikes and one ball picked out a straight line, uncounted curve and square ball sailed twenty feet over the center field fence for the longest drive ever hit at the Fairies diamond. Needles to say, there was just a little noise in the Janesville section of the grandstand as both runners dog-trotted home after that terrible wallow. Tillie, Beloit pitcher, lost much of his gallantry and Korman with a safe throw which was turned into a run by Blake with his second hit.

Luck Saves Beloit.

When the Janesville aggregation of stickers took the field there was a great confidence that the Cardinals would cop the game, and in the first inning they should have clinched the combat. But Beloit was lucky, as usual, in a sensational catch by the Cavanaugh pulled him out of a bad hole. Curtis bit at Tillie's out drop and fanned. When the Beloit cheering had died down, Blake lammed out a clean double to the fence and went to third on an out. Driscoll hit a fast one down third which bounced perfectly to Cavanaugh, who caught Brook and Wilcox in the International first inning without a struggle. Fuck fanning two.

In the third the Cardinals pulled for a score, but sparkling catches by the Beloit outfielders kept the rally after Fuck fled out to Wycoff. Curtis singled and Korman was hit by a pitched ball, for the second time. Blake lifted a high to right field, which Miller captured after a hard chase. Korman at second went to third on the catch. Almostst lived a drive out to right field, which Miller grabbed off with two fans.

Clothing the Ball.

The Cardinals were hitting Tillie hard, but speedy fielding by the fly chasers caused the run efforts to miss fire. Olson, the blonde center, was squeezed to the bases drives, and until the seventh the game was a toss-up, for Beloit's defense work was without a flaw. Then came the inning that blazed the trail to victory—the lucky seventh. Sugare, Cardinals' catcher, belted out a double to the fence and Bob Fuck stepped up to the plate swinging a bludgeon in a most vicious manner. Pitcher Korman and Blake, the fore part of the wrecking crew, fell victims to the defense wall of the Fairies, but the Cardinals were satisfied with the one tally—for the time being.

In their half of the second Beloit made a bid for a score on their one hit, but Weber, playing third, did the rescue act, gobbling up a stizzling grounder at third and forcing the runner for the third out. Cavanaugh got the only hit, and it would not have taken much effort to mark the drive as an error on Almostst at first. The ball was hard hit and the giant baseman failed to get his hands on the speeding pill. With two down Riply walked and then Lucher hit to Weber.

Three in the Ninth.

In the last of the ninth the Cardinals got money and with the game cinched with two men out, the crowd started leaving. Sullivan hit a tall fly to Curtis in left field, and Curtis committed the suicide act by dropping it. Everybody sat down again, and Beloit rooters "rode" Fuck as hard as possible. The worst was still to come, for Almostst dropped a tall fly at first off Smith's bat, and with two on bases and Witte, a pinch hitter, to bat, affairs took a more serious turn. Witte bounced out to "Denny" Blake, and it was all over but the shouting. Summary:

MORRIS MILLER

If Johnny Griffiths bumps up against Young Saylor at Akron Aug. 10, as is provided in a tentative schedule, he'll have to fight a man who uses a system. It's this system that has brought Saylor to be a recognized candidate for the lightweight title. System and a brain that is active. Saylor's recent victory over Charley White was a surprise, but a result of brainwork. He watched White, figured out a system for meeting his attack, used his system and won. In addition to system, Saylor has a stiff left hook, a roaring overhead right and individuality. He does not misjudge himself and seldom misjudged an opponent. He's in the running because he combines brainwork with his fair ability. Saylor or Joe Rivers with Griffiths for the Akron fight in August.

Bill Klem better beware. This is a bad year for ears.

Jack Johnson again breaks into print. He has given three footballs and half a dozen sets of boxing gloves to the intercollegiate soldiers. He autographed the stuff. The soldiers take their rest with liberal doses of sports.

They are having a regatta at Peoria. We never knew they could sail yachts on that stuff.

Once more the charge that the Johnson-Willard fight at Havana last April was a fake has been made. This time Horatio Bottomley, editor of John Bull, an English publication, makes the allegation. In the current issue Bottomley says Johnson was to receive $50,000 for "laying down." He never received the money, it is stated.

THE LAST WORD.

Germany has now received the last official note from the Wilson administration on the much-vexed questions of differences between this country and Imperial Germany. That the note is a strong one goes without saying. That it voices the real sentiment of the American people is certain. It is to be hoped that it will be so viewed by the imperial government. One comment by an eastern exchange expresses the sentiment of those who have studied the note carefully in concise form, when it says:

"The latest note to Germany fully meets the situation, and closes the discussion. Each successive note has been better and clearer."

"The German government is brought back to the point. The rights of neutrals and of non-combatants do not permit of argument. They are clearly defined, and the submarine has not changed them. Humanity in war was as round a principle in the days of the bow and arrow as it is now. International law is for the benefit of everybody, even belligerents themselves."

"Germany is clearly told that our relations with the allies are not her business. 'You're another' is a plea of guilt. We are quite capable of upholding our case with Great Britain or France."

"The note to Germany places our position clearly before her. The United States government asks no changes, wants no concessions, and demands that the rights of its citizens upon the seas be respected. The note points out the submarine commanders have shown that they clearly respect international law when they choose. All the rest follows, and is not debatable."

WHO IS TO BLAME?

With the death list not yet complete, the awful horror of Saturday when hundreds of lives were snuffed out in almost the twinkling of an eye in a landlocked harbor, within the sight of thousands of spectators, powerless to avert the disaster, the awful calamity that came to the merry picnickers in the Chicago river comes before us to all. We shudder at the details of the San Francisco quake, and destruction of life and property. We held our breath as the death list grew after the Iroquois theatre disaster. The burning of the "General Slocum" in New York harbor was terrible in its details, and the sinking of the Titanic caused a wave of indignation the world through, but this last useless loss of life is something that appalls all. Following each national disaster stringent investigations have been made and reforms created to prevent future similar calamities. We learn by disaster, apparently, but today, to the homes filled with sorrow and grief for their loved ones gone, never to return, the sympathy of the world goes out to Chicago in its suffering, and indignation is expressed on those to blame through criminal carelessness for permitting such an accident to occur. That either federal or state or city officials would permit the over-crowding of a vessel, known to be as unseaworthy as was the Eastland, is criminal. Is the greed for gold so great that we must risk our lives and the lives of our loved ones to procure it? Are we so dead to the sensibilities of caution that such things will be permitted in civilized communities? It is to be hoped not, and while we can but express sorrow at the present time, it is to be hoped the world has been taught a lesson, too costly by far, that it will not be soon forgotten.

PROGRESSIVE REPUBLICANS.

When the great republican party stood at the dividing of the ways in 1912 and the regulars nominated William H. Taft, the discontented element, swept away by the arguments of its leaders, followed Theodore Roosevelt throughout the campaign which resulted in the election of Woodrow Wilson. It was freely predicted that the G. O. P. had soundly defeated. But the republican organization that had weathered the Free Silver and Populist disturbances went quietly about the reorganization of its affairs and planning for the next national test.

This test came at the polls in 1914 and showed a decided change in sentiment and almost the elimination of the progressive party. The results showed so clearly the desire of the people to return to republican good times that at the present time no one really believes the progressives longer form a party of definitely independent aims and organization. However it was something of a satisfaction to have Colonel Roosevelt's clear admission that they are again a branch of the republicanism, certain to revolt sharply in reactionary voices prevail in the old party, certain to lose their individuality if a spirit akin to their own is dominant. Under a man like Hughes, he told an Oregon audience on Monday, "our progressive idea" would be safe. But if a reactionary were nominated, "the progressive party would be an imperative need to the country." Considering the colonel's violent lashing-out against men who are trying to talk for him in politics, this has a considerable resemblance to William Allen White's recent statement as to the future of progressivism. It is only more moderate, more friendly to the much-debated party of 1912! It is becoming clear that the colonel would a great deal rather have a forward-looking republican nominated, and party unity restored, than be put to the necessity of sulking outside the camp or of carrying on a heated rival campaign. A day before entering the political domain of the ultra-ambitious Governor Johnson he dares hint at the absorption of the party. And it is to be noted that he predicts nothing as to the progressives' course if the republicans do choose a "reactionary." Mr. White left it to be understood that two million voters would then seriously contemplate voting with the democrats. Is it not possible that in the colonel's phrase, many would think they were "exerting an influence to be counted on for the best good of the country"?

THE APPROPRIATIONS.

The present week promises to be one full of interest to the average taxpayer of the state who has followed the efforts of the governor and his friends in the legislature to overcome the evil influences of the "Tax Eaters" who, rather than reduce the taxes one jot or tittle would if possible increase them by wasteful expenditure of the state's moneys. The appropriation bills are being considered at Madison, and while the prunking hook has been used to advantage in the various committee hearings, still there are many corners that he can cut and make a hundred or thousand dollars saved the state in expense if careful judgment is used. Governor Philipp was elected on a platform calling for economy. He was nominated on that platform, chosen from a large field of candidates for this same purpose and it is useless to think that he will now sit quietly by and see his pledges repudiated by the tax-eaters without a bitter fight. Philipp is a fighting man. Philipp is a business man, and before the present legislature is through with him they will discover that when he says a thing he usually means it. If the bills passed by the legislature are too large, he will veto them. It will take a lot of fighting even on the part of the "tax-eaters" to pass them over his veto, for the people are watching them and the people will hold them to a strict accounting. The tax-payers are behind Philipp and by this time the legislature knows it.

Judge Maxfield has decided one point in the dog license tangle. It was well taken, but the whole ordinance is faulty. In the first place the cost of the license is too great. If it was two dollars and one there would be no serious complaint, but four and two dollars for the household pet is too expensive a luxury.

If we have decent growing weather from now on we may expect the usual bumper crops again this year in Rock county despite the cold, raw spring and early summer. Of course the outlook is not the brightest yet, but the small grain harvest is unusually heavy and that helps materially on the feed question.

Japan is already to take over the American shipping interests on the Pacific coast to escape the restrictions of the La Follette Seamen's law, just the same as it is ready to manage the Philippines or Hawaii for us if we would let them.

Next week is fair week. Have you your plans all made for your display, and have you arranged your time schedule so that you can spend the desired time inspecting the displays and watching the horse races? If not make your schedule up at once.

These vacation days the up-river cottages are proving their worth. The beautiful Rock is appreciated by those who know it, but the only trouble is that so few know it as well as they do other resorts and consequently can not appreciate it.

The "Battle Royal" is on. "Tax-eaters" versus "Tax-savers." The only good feature of the whole affair is that Philipp is referee and he will see the "tax-savers" have fair play.

HELPED CONVEY DEAD FROM SCENE OF WRECK

ALBERT F. WATSON, FORMER JANEVILLE MAN, WORKED ALL DAY WITHOUT FOOD AT CHICAGO DISASTER.

LOCAL PEOPLE THERE

Miss McCann Has Narrow Escape—Fred Baker at Scene of Rescue, Walking on Top of Fated Ship's Hold.

Albert F. Watson, who was formerly the United States express agent in Janesville, and who is now connected with the Brink local express company at Chicago, was in the city yesterday and described the scene of the Eastland catastrophe as he witnessed it, while aiding in the conveying of the dead, who were to be transported to the north side. He worked incessantly the entire day without food or rest, as did hundreds of other heroic rescuers.

During the day and a few hours in the night Mr. Watson helped to carry away one hundred and twenty-five bodies. He said: "Although the accounts in the papers give the reader an insight to the awfulness of the tragedy, it is indescribable. The horrible scene of all, women moaning, orders being shouted and the ghastly work of finding human remains is beyond description. Mr. Watson had the chance to talk with out of the captains of one of the other ships, but he as to his opinion of how it happened or who was to be blamed for it."

Miss McCann, who wired her brother, Robert McCann, of South Jackson street, last evening, that she was safe, told him by telegram the narrow escape she came to being on the ill-fated ship. She was standing waiting for one of the other ships, when the Eastland turned turtle. Fortunately she had waited for one of the later boats.

Fred Baker on Scene. Fred Baker, who happened to be in Chicago, was at the scene of the disaster during Saturday. He is a friend, the latter having his office in a building overlooking the river, was able to get onto the boat and walk on the side of the hold, that held hundreds of dead bodies. He tells of what an indescribable feeling crept over him as he realized that they were treading over the tomb of human bodies. The rescue of which was impossible. He said: "I had seen divers and rescuers worked steadily until some were forced to stop from sheer exhaustion. Others toiled on regardless."

One of the principal divers, and one who came near losing his own life in the work of saving others, is Charles Gunderson, who it will be remembered, was employed here at the time the Eastland left. He is now a few years ago. He tells his own story of how he nearly lost his life. "I was down in the dance deck," he said, "when I got mixed up with some twisted and tangled bodies. I had the signal cord a dozen times before I realized it must be fouled above. It was as tight a place as I have ever been in. And then I made another discovery. I found the signal cord, too, and I couldn't breathe. I was down there alone without air. Those above had no way of knowing what I was up against. It was up to me to get out."

"I kicked until I must have been blue in the face and then all of a sudden I was free. I took a step and the signal cord was cleared. I began to come through the hole, but it was not enough to do me much good. You can bet I gave the cord a jerk."

Gunderson lost consciousness on the upward journey, and it was half an hour before he recovered. Still weak, he insisted on going into the hull again. Arthur P. Burnham, vice-president of the Rock County Savings and Trust company, on the scene of the disaster, said that it was a sight he shall never forget. He visited the scene several times during the day, and saw them take many of the bodies from the hold. He said: "I was in the hold of the ship. I was the guest of the last of the week of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dulin of Center avenue, returned to Chicago on Sunday. Miss Foley is in the employ of the Western Electric company and had been taken to go on the excursion of the ill-fated Eastland on Saturday at the last moment, but changed her mind and decided to come to Janesville for a visit, but she returned yesterday, as many of her friends were drowned."

Guests from out of the city were Mr. and Mrs. Karlheiser, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weyder, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Weyder and Casper Weyder, all of Chicago, and John and Michael Weyder of Aurora, Illinois.

Arbutus Grove No. 55 will meet at Caledonia Hall Tuesday evening, July 27, at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Bert Gage left this morning for Chicago, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Valentine, for a few weeks and then visit relatives and friends in Marshalltown, Iowa.

The Wedding Route. It is reported that the "latest thing" in wedding invitations is an engraved map showing the way to the church and to the house. Grinding perplexity is the mother of innovations. It is not so stated, but unquestionably this helpful scheme originated in Boston, where wedding guests have been known to lose themselves and wander around for hours through the tangled highways, not reaching the scene of the festival until the rice and old shoes had been thrown and everyone else was on the way home.—Providence Journal.

COMMISSION HOLDS MEETING SATURDAY

City Council Acts Upon Minor Matters.—Big Meeting Scheduled for Tomorrow.

Wishing to "dispose of minor matters" before the council the city commission held a special meeting Saturday afternoon at which business of lesser importance was cleared away to allow time for other subjects at the regular meeting tomorrow, which will be one of the most important meetings of the season.

At this date, the proposed city ordinance for the elimination of all power and telephone poles, the first step toward the establishing of the new ornamental light system, was read.

The ordinance was read and the council will take a vote on the ordinance at this time and will consider the issues brought up by interested parties at the hearing. Recently President P. H. Korst of the Janesville Electric company, met with Mayor Paterson and it was reported complete figures had not been obtained on the subject.

The ordinance for the proposed "white-way" for the business district. Tests will be made of the various lights to be considered and experiments will be made for a standard light to be placed in the residence district.

Besides the pole ordinance, the council will also open the bids for the paving work on three streets and the contract will also be awarded at this time.

The Board of Education has recently closed their contract for coal, the successful bidder being P. H. Quinn and son.

The commission received an invitation on Saturday from the Grocers and Butchers' association for the annual picnic of the organization on Wednesday. The invitation was received and fled.

The bonds of A. Wikaduz and Julius Decker for a license to excavate were approved by the council.

The bonds of H. E. Hatcher, 18 North Academy street, for a license to excavate streets under the plumbing ordinance were approved by the council.

The bonds of William Mirlposky for a second-hand dealer's license were approved and the license granted.

The city commission on a resolution introduced by Mayor Paterson instructed City Attorney W. H. Dougherty to make an appeal on the decision rendered by the court in the case of the McLean case. The appeal was taken Saturday afternoon and filed with the clerk of court.

OBITUARY

John George Hayner.

After months of feebleness, death came to the relief of John G. Hayner. He was suffering from a long illness and the tired spirit passed out to the life beyond.

Mr. Hayner was born near Troy, in Rensselaer county, New York, February 2, 1847. He was married and had a family in the early fifties and located on a farm south of the city in what has long been known as the Hayner neighborhood.

After he bought an adjoining farm, which he occupied for many years, leaving it to come to this city about 1880, where he has since resided.

Mr. Hayner was a man of unassuming manner, possessed of sterling qualities of honesty which won the respect and confidence of all who knew him. He was a member of the Methodist church and one of the charter members of the First Methodist church and later identified with the Court street society.

His home was across the street from Union street, where he lived for many years. He was a regular attendant after the feebleness of age prevented him from attending his own church.

He was a man of strong convictions and his hope of immortality was like an anchor to the soul. He talked about death, and faced the issue calmly. His passing away after days of unconsciousness was peaceful and without suffering.

Mr. Hayner was twice married. His wife, a daughter-in-law and grand-daughter, are the immediate relatives who mourn his passing.

He was buried at the home, 404 Main avenue, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. The family request no flowers.

GIRL ESCAPES DEATH IN EASTLAND MISHAP

HANGS FROM UPPER DECK RAIL, THIRTY FEET ABOVE WATER, UNTIL PICKED UP BY TUG.

LIVES IN EVANSVILLE

Parents at Evansville Knew Nothing of Daughter's Narrow Escape Until She Arrived Home.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Evansville, July 26.—Miss Nellie Gory, daughter of John Gory of Evansville, who is employed at the offices of the Western Electric company, and who was on the ill-fated ship, Eastland, when it capsized in the river at Chicago, Saturday, arrived at her home Saturday night to spend a few days with her parents. Her mother and father were very much shocked to hear of her narrow escape for she had not informed them that she had intended to go on the excursion.

Miss Gory was on the second deck, when the boat began to list and when it finally and suddenly lunged over on its side, she caught hold of the rail and hung onto the bar, suspended thirty feet above the water, until a tug came to her rescue. She was with a party of three girls all of whom were saved.

NASTURTIUMS AND HANDICAPS.

When is a handicap not a handicap? When it is imposed on someone plucky enough to make it into a help. Between two rows of nasturtium plantings in my garden I set a row of inverted flower pot to mark the division. Two unfortunate seeds happened to have strayed from the straight row and came up under the flower pots. What did they do when they reached the surface of the earth and found that they were still some inches away from the open sunlight? Did they give up the struggle? No. On the contrary, they grew so much faster than the other seeds that while the open air nasturtiums were only about two inches high, the two little imprisoned plants, with only the ray of sunlight to live by, had climbed up the four or five inches to the opening and pushed their heads through, thus apprising me of their imprisonment and winning their instant release.

A Very Far Seeing Nasturtium.

Incidentally, although it is aside from the moral of my tale, I must record my admiration of their wisdom in growing leaves small enough to be pushed through the tiny opening, while the other plants were sprouting much bigger leaves. How wise nature is, after all! Might we not be better off if we trusted her more and tried to improve on her less?

The other day I was visiting one of the most wonderful institutions I know, a world-famous home for the education of the blind. The head of the institution was telling me about some of his notable people. One was a girl who at the age of fourteen had her eyes put out by a boy who was shooting rabbits. She was just entering high school and was an indifferent student. She went to this institution, learned to be blind (as they say there) and developed into an excellent student, especially in mathematics. Further, she also developed a splendid pluck which made her willing to go back among the seeing and compete with them. She had lost two years of high school, but despite the handicap of blindness she did the three years' work in two and graduated well up in her class.

The Pluck That Transforms a Handicap.

That's what a handicap did to a character with pluck enough to make it into a stimulus. Would Demosthenes have been so great an orator if he had not had a handicap to spur him into efforts that carried him on and on to a shining goal? Probably not.

Nobody welcomes handicaps, but many of us must have one sort or another thrust upon us. Whether we accept them as justifications for inferiority or use them as a stimulus to make us fight the harder shows the stuff of which we are made.

Question—I am going to announce my engagement in a few days. My fiancé is willing to give me a diamond ring, but we have not a great deal of money and I wish the $100 he would spend could be put into the house furnishings. I am afraid the people will think it queer if I don't have a ring. What would you do?—Blancette.

Answer—I'd try to have the courage not to care what people thought about something that was distinctly my business. I know one woman who has always regretted that she didn't have that courage. Personally, I think the disappointed suitor's voice should be heard, and engagement rings get them into the false and foolish habit of spending to impress rather than to enjoy.

Household Hints

TO MAKE VIENNA ROLLS.

Set a plain bread sponge at 6 o'clock in the evening. At bedtime make a dough as for homemade bread. Cover in mixing bowl and set in moderately warm place until 6 o'clock next morning. Shape into round rolls as large as a small egg, set in fourde baking pan so far apart that they will not touch as they rise; cover and leave for an hour. Just before they go into the oven cut half through the middle of each with a floured sharp knife. Bake in moderate oven to form a good crust. Cover at end of ten minutes with paper. Move this fifteen minutes later and brown.

THOSE SPOTS OF ROAD GREASE. During a recent automobile tour one woman was fortunate enough to have her new white serge suit thoroughly spotted with the road oil which had been applied to the road that day. Upon her return to the city she took the suit and rubbed lard into each of the spots, and then folded the suit and laid it away for several hours. A thorough washing with warm water and soap removed all the stains and left the suit as good as new.

SALAD RECIPES.

Orange Salad.—Arrange sliced oranges in delicate lettuce leaves and sprinkle with chopped celery and broken English walnuts. Serve with a mayonnaise made without mustard and whitened with whipped cream.

Sweet Pea Salad.—Peel and split ripe peas, put them on a mat of tender lettuce, then sprinkle over finely chopped butternuts and dress with rum, fine sugar and a little lemon juice. The taste is liked. This may also be served with a whipped cream mayonnaise.

Assorted Fruit Salad.—Prepare finely cut celery with the shredded whites of hard-boiled eggs. Mash the yolks to a smooth paste with skinned and boned sardines, and shape the mixture into balls, dipping them at last into a bowl of white egg yolk so as to make them a rich yellow. Dress the celery and egg whites with French dressing or mayonnaise, put the mixture on a bed of lettuce and use the balls as a garnish.

Whole Tomato Salad.—Select some large, fully ripe and yet firm tomatoes; remove skins and put them against the ice for several hours. Put a whole tomato on one or two lettuce leaves, dress with white chilled mayonnaise and serve in this individual manner. This salad is meat and drink in point of nutrition and many persons find it enough for the substantial dish of a summer night.

Fish Salad.—A delicious salad which is set soon after the regular course is made of Bismarck herrings, three of which would make a dish large enough for several persons. Put the herrings in a bowl and cover them with a dressing made of olive oil, cayenne, horseradish and salted white onion; add a tablespoonful of sauce and one of walnut catsup. After the fish has soaked some time in the dressing, arrange it in a bed of lettuce finely shredded with the fingers, and pour over the sauce. Another good fish salad can be made with one salt herring and six Bermuda potatoes. Boil the potatoes in their skins, let them get cold and slice fine. Then wash off the herring, peel it off skin and shred it in fine, short strips. Mix the fish and potato, and then dress with olive oil, vinegar, salt, pepper, adding a tablespoonful of finely chopped chives. Be careful of salt with this salad.

Pickled Mussels Salad.—Line a bowl with thin strips of hard toast, then put in a pile of pickled mussels, dressing with oil and vinegar in which some sliced onion has soaked for a while. The mussels can be had bottled, and all the good fish stores keep the freshly prepared ones once. Season for them arrives. Add enough of the pickle liquid to moisten the toast.

Cheese Salad.—Rub cottage cheese to a smooth paste with cream, butter and salt; make the mixture into balls. Then rub a salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic and fill it with chicory or endive cut into narrow strips; border the bowl with the cheese balls, and the center part of the salad has been treated to a French dressing.

Almond Salad.—Stone and chop six fat pimento olives; and half a cup of blanched almonds cut fine and the same quantity of finely cut celery. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise made without mustard.

A Good Little Girl

BY SARA MOORE

Sara Moore.

Two girls leaned breathlessly over the balustrade watching a couple on the terrace below. The spectacle was not edifying, but from an educational point of view the young watchers considered it unequalled.

One of their friends, noted for her charm, was engaged in the somewhat questionable but thoroughly engaging act of tying a young man's affections into hard and fast knots. The two above were interested in observing the rules of coquetry by which the fashionable siren accomplished her end.

"I never in all my life," gasped one, but the other hastily stifled the exclamation with a firm palm. When they looked again they saw only the finale of the comedy. The pretty girl, after arousing the fervor of her companion by every art known to woman—had left her perfumed veil blow seductively across her face. In another instant she had repulsed his quick effort to embrace her. With a cleverness that might be envied by an older beauty, and which the watcher wrongly credited to practice when it was really a born genius, put the apologetic, half-cynical, but entirely-be-dazzled young man back in his proper place—a state of uncertainty.

"It is all," mused one of the girls later, "in the way you look at first."

"And in the daring," nodded the other.

To Avoid Taking Cold.

How shall we avoid taking cold? To begin with, lead the physiological life, is the advice of a well-known physician. Get up in good time; bathe well; eat three meals of wholesome food a day, and don't hurry about it. Be in the fresh air all the time, day and night; and get in the sunshine whenever you can, and it isn't too hot.

Size of the Earth.

To be exact, the diameter of the earth from pole to pole is 7,899 miles; the equatorial diameter being 7,925 miles. The slight difference of diameter is, of course, owing to the flattening out of the poles.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Two years ago I went to a boy whom I was very fond of. He had a quarrel and he went back to the girl he had been for me. I have cared for the boy all the time, but I have not shown it in any way. I got acquainted with the other girl and I liked her very much, but she did not seem to like me. I think it was because I had gone with a foolish boy and she knew he liked me at one time.

Now, the other day this girl and I went to a party and I asked her to go with me to the auto riding with her, the boy and a boy friend of hers. I thought if I did go that I would be running a great risk of being placed in a foolish position or just to bring about some result she desired. But after thinking it over I decided that seeing the boy again would be worth any risk and I went.

I had a splendid time. The girl was fine to me and so were both the boys. The girl had a date with the boy when the one I liked phoned and wanted her to go riding. He thought it would be fun to take a crowd and that is why she asked me.

I rode with the other boy and she rode with the one I like. The other boy is almost a stranger in town and doesn't know many people. Do you think it would be all right for me to have the two boys and the girl at my house some night or should I just drop them? I still care a great deal for the boy.

Invite the girl to your home some time to lunch or dinner, and leave the boys out until after you have had one of the party again. In this way you will not give the impression that you are too anxious to be with them and they will be more apt to ask you.

MARY B.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a little boy four years old who still sucks his thumb. I have tried to stop him by putting aloe on his thumb, but it has done no good. Can you suggest anything?—A MOTHER.

Some mothers break their children of the habit by making them wear a stocking on their arm. This is extremely embarrassing to a child, because he is laughed at by his play-fellows. Sometimes the habit is broken by dipping the thumb in quassia.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am sixteen and I am going to visit a cousin in another town. I got a letter from a boy who lives there asking me to go to a dance with him at the clubhouse. I got acquainted with this boy three years ago and when my cousin told him that I was coming back he thought it would be nice to renew our acquaintance in this way. I am very young to go to a dance. Do you think it will be all right this time? My cousin is going and she is eighteen.

In this case it will be all right to go.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am just twenty-one years old and I have been going out with a man thirty-one years old who is a hard and steady worker. I have been acquainted with him for years and I know that he thinks the world of me and I think the same of him. He has asked me to be his sweetheart. Do you think it proper for me to be? He has been writing me love letters. Do you think it proper for me to answer them?—E. C. G.

If the man means that he wants you to be his wife, it will be all right. Don't write "love letters" unless you are engaged.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young girl and I have hair growing around my mouth. Is there any way I can get rid of it besides using the electric needle?—THANK YOU.

There is no permanent way besides the electric needle.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

GLIMPSES OF MARRIED. "So you are Mrs. Stivers?" "Well, I'm glad you have come for the quilts. Mrs. Morton looked uncommonly at the caller. They have been around in the way long enough. It really looked as though my son was going to start a quarrel."

"You would hardly class fine hand work like these quilts with gimcracks, would you?" "Mrs. Stivers' face over a s written over with tolerance and superiority. I understand," she continued, "not noticing Mrs. Morton's mind short of disdain, that their fortune proved a feeling shadow."

She folded her hands in her lap and fixed her gaze on the ceiling. "It is vain to set our affections on riches," she said. "I guess their affections were not set to any great extent," snapped the old lady. "What I wonder at is that they would give house room to all the rubbish the citizens of this town saw fit to load onto them. It's an imposition."

The narrow face expressed grave disapproval. "As far as the quilts are concerned, I felt she should esteem it a privilege to help a worthy cause if so be Providence had placed riches in her hands to dispense, but evidently the vain pomp and show of the world was what occurred the thoughts of your son and daughter-in-law and a wise Providence removed the inheritance as a means of discipline."

"Means of discipline?" exploded the old lady. "Do you mean to say you think people without fortunes are under punishment? You are not wealthy; is your lack of means a punishment for your sins?"

"I simply meant," and Mrs. Stivers held her head still in the air, "that Providence held out the promise of fortune as a test of character. They did not stand the test and it was removed. Few people have a realizing sense of the consequences of their spending money. It should not be used in self-gratification."

Who made you a judge of the ways of Providence in other people's affairs? Mrs. Morton leaned forward in her chair and fixed her keen old eyes on the caller's face. "Don't you think each of us would have enough to do to adjust his own life to existing conditions and not trouble about his neighbor?"

"I see you believe in a very selfish policy, madam. Like Cain, you are not your brother's keeper." She rose as she spoke.

"Some people interpret 'being a brother's keeper' to mean regulating his brother's conscience. Remember, your conscience is your guide, not mine nor any other person's." Mrs. Morton handed the huge brown paper parcel to the woman and opened the door.

"Did you good morning," Mrs. Stivers bowed stiffly and took her departure.

"Come on, ye hosts," laughed Nell, clapping her hands as she appeared from the bedroom. "I see we are prepared to face the superior numbers of the enemy."

A pleased smile overspread the old lady's features. "The little man I've hardly held him since I came."

"I hope you'll grow up to face things as they are, not to temporize or hedge," she said to the baby on her knee. "A thing looked squarely in the face has lost its power to hurt you." The baby reached a chubby hand for his grandmother's glasses.

"You don't need glasses yet; you are clear-eyed enough."

"May his brain be as clear as his eyes, is my wish," said Nell, laying a caressing hand on his head.

What she saw was this. A rich, brown limousine, in which the dome light was brightly burning, had drawn up to the steps. Inside, among the rich brown cushions and hangings, and pausing to light a leisurely cigarette, sat the most wickedly handsome man in the world! He was black-haired and black-mustached and black-garbed, and had large, lustrous, melting black eyes, while on his oval cheek was the ruddy bloom of health. Every girl in the window sighed, as, with a movement which was grace in every changing line, he stepped out of the brilliantly lighted limousine, and came slowly up the steps, tall, slender, magnificent, in his shining silk hat and his flowing lavender, and his white tie, and his plaited shirt front—oh, everything, correct to the last detail, except for the trifling touches of originality, down to his patent leather tips! With a wave of careless ease he flung back his lavender over one shoulder, and rang the bell!

"Dick!" cried a voice just behind Gail's ear. Gail had not known that anyone was leaning heavily on her shoulders, but now she and Arly, with one accord, turned and faced for the vestibule!

"You handsome thing!" cried Arly, as he stepped into the hall and held out a hand to each of them. "I've a notion to kiss you!"

"All right," he beamed down on her, shining another beam for Gail. No, Gail had not exaggerated in memory the magic of his melting eyes. It could not be exaggerated!

"There aren't any words to tell you how welcome you are!" said Gail, as the butler disappeared with his hat and lavender.

"What on earth brought you here to kiss us?" demanded Arly.

"I came to propose to Gail," announced Dick calmly, and took her hand again, bending down on her that wonderfully magnetic gaze, so that she was panic-stricken in the idea that she was about to proceed with his project right on the spot.

"Wait until after the dance," she laughingly requested, drawing back a step and blushing furiously.

"We're wasting time," protested

Arly. "Hurry on in, Dick. We want to exhibit you."

"I don't mind," consented Dick cheerfully, and stepped through the doorway, where he made a decided sensation.

Eleven girls dreamed of his melting eyes that night, and the town boys lost their monopoly. Viewing Gail's victorious scramble with Arly for Dick's exclusive possession, their friends unanimously reduced them to the ranks.

AFTER THE DANCE, DICK MADE GOOD HIS threat with Gail, and formally proposed, urging his enterprise in coming after her as one of his claims to consideration; but Gail, laughing, and liking him tremendously, told him he was too handsome to be married, and sent him back home, with a fresh gardenia in his buttonhole. That night Arly and Gail sat long and silently on the comfortable couch in front of Arly's fireplace, the one in fluffy pink fur, the other in the one in fluffy pink fur, under her black eyelashes. The one in pink was gazing into the fire with far-seeing brown eyes, and was braiding and unbraiding, with slender white fingers, a flowing strand of her brown hair.

"Gail," ventured the one in blue.

"Yes," This abstractedly.

"Aren't you a little bit homesick? I am."

"So am I," answered Gail, with sudden animation.

"Let's go back!" she exclaimed.

"When?" and Gail jumped up.

CHAPTER XV.

The Rector Knows.

Rev. Smith Boyd came down to breakfast with a more or less hollow look in his face, and his mother, inspecting him keenly, poured his coffee immediately. There was the trace of a twinkle in her eyes, which were nevertheless extremely solicitous.

"How is your head?" she inquired.

Rev. Smith Boyd dutifully withdrew his mind from elsewhere, to consider that proposition justly. "All right, thank you," he decided, and he fell into exactly such a state of melancholy, trifling with his grapefruit, as Mrs. Boyd wished to test. She focused her keen eyes on him microscopically.

"Miss Sargent is coming back tonight; on the sixteen train."

There was a clatter in Rev. Smith Boyd's service plate. He had been awkward with his spoon, and dropped it.

"That is delightful news," he returned with frank enthusiasm which was depressing to his mother.

Mrs. Boyd had nothing more to say. She watched her son Tod start vigorously at his grapefruit, with a vivacity which seemed to indicate that he might finish with the rind. He drew his eggs energetically toward him, buttered a slice of toast, and finished his breakfast. Suddenly he looked at his watch.

"I have an extremely busy day before me," he told her briskly, and feeling to see if he had supplied himself with handkerchiefs, he kissed his mother, and was gone without another word about Gail! She could have shaken him in her disappointment. What was the matter with Tod?

Rev. Smith Boyd sang as he went out of the door, not a tune or any set musical form, but a mere unconscious testing of his voice. It was quite unusual for him to sing, on the way to Vedder court, for he devoted his time to this portion of his duties because he was a Christian. He had sympathy, more than enough, and he both understood and pitied the people of Vedder court, but, in spite of all his intense interest in the deplorable condition of humanity's weak and helpless, he was compelled to confess to himself that he loathed dirt.

Vedder court was particularly perfect in its specialty this morning. The oily black sediment on its pavements was streaked with iridescence, and grime seemed to be shedding from every point of the drunken old buildings. They even seemed to leer down at Rev. Smith Boyd, as if his being the only clean thing in the street were an impertinence, which they would soon rectify.

A half intoxicated woman, her front teeth missing and her colorless hair straggling, and her cheekbones gleaming with the high red of debauchery, leered up at him as he passed. A curly-headed youngster, who would have been angelically beautiful if he had been washed and his native blood pumped from him, threw mud at Rev. Smith Boyd, out of a mere artistic desire to reduce him to harmony with his surroundings. A mouthful of old woman, with hands clawed like a parrot's, begged him for alms, and he was ashamed of himself that he gave it to her with such shrinking. The Master could not have been like this. A burly "panhandler" stopped him with an artificial whine. A cripple, displaying his ugly deformity for the benefit and example of the unborn, took from him a dime and a wince of repulsion.

"The poor ye have always with ye!" For ages that had been the excuse for such offenses as Vedder court. They were here, they must be cared for within their means, and no amount of pauperizing charity could remove them from the scheme of things. In so far, Market Square church felt justified in its landlordship, that it forced squalor and bred more. Yet, somehow, the rector or that solitary respectable institution was not quite satisfied, and he had added a new expense to the profit and loss account in the ledger of this particular house of God. He had hired a crew of forty muscular men, with horses and carts, and had caused them to be deputized as sanitary police, and had given them authority to enter and clean; which may have accounted for the especially germ-laden feel of the atmosphere this morning. Down in the next block, where the square was systematically at work, there were the sounds of countless individual battles, and loud mouthings of the fundamental principles of anarchy. A government which would force soap and deodorizers and germicides on presumably free and independent citizens, was a government of tyranny; and it had been a particular wisdom, on the part of the rough-hewn faced man who had hired this crew, to select none but accomplished brick dodgers. In the ten carts which lined the curb on both sides there were piled such a conglomerate mass of nondescript fragments of everything undesirable that the rector felt a trace better, as if he had erased one mark at least of the long black score against himself. Somehow, recently, he had acquired an urgent impulse to clean Vedder court!

He turned in at one of the largest and most uninviting of the rickety stairways. He skipped, with a practiced tread, the broken third step, and made a mental note to once more take up, with the property committee, the battle of minor repairs. He stopped at the third landing, and knocked at a dark door, whereupon a petulant voice told him to come in. The petulant voice came from a woman who sat in a broken rocker chair, with one leg held stiffly in front of her. She was heavy with the fat which rolls and bulges, and an empty bed pail on which the froth had dried, sat by her side. On the rickety bed lay a man propped on one elbow, who had been unshaven for days, so that his sandy beard made a sort of layer on his square face. The man sat up at once. He was a trifle undernourished, but broad-shouldered and short-necked, and had enormous red hands.

"How are you today, Mrs. Rogers?" asked the rector, sitting on a backless and bottomless chair, with his hat on his knees, and holding himself small, with an unconscious instinct to not let anything touch him.

"No better," replied the woman, making her voice weak. "I'll never know a well day again. The good Lord has seen fit to afflict me. I ain't saying anything, but it ain't fair."

Rev. Smith Boyd could not resist a slight contraction of his brows. Mrs. Rogers invariably introduced the Lord into every conversation with the rector, and it was his duty to wrestle with her soul, if she insisted. He was not averse to imparting religious instruction, but, being a practical man, he could not enjoy wasting his breath.

"There are many things we cannot understand," he granted. "What does the doctor say about your condition?"

"He don't offer no hope," returned the woman, with gratification. "This knee joint will be stiff till the end of my days. If I had anything to blame myself with it would be different, but I ain't. I say my prayers every night, but if I'm too sick, I do it in the morning."

"Can that stuff!" growled the man on the bed. "You been prayin' once a day ever since I got you, and nothing's ever happened."

"I've brought you a job," returned Rev. Smith Boyd promptly. "I have still ten 'phases' to finish the sanitary squad which is cleaning up Vedder court."

The man on the bed sat perfectly still.

"I can't do it," he regretted. "I don't say anything about the pay, but I'm a stationary engineer." He was interested enough in his course of solid reasoning to lay a stubby finger in his soiled palm. "If I take this two weeks' job it'll stop me from lookin' for work, and I might miss a permanent situation."

"Then you won't accept it," and the rector rose, with extremely cold eyes. "I'd like to accommodate you, but I can't afford it," and the man remained perfectly still, an art which he had brought to great perfection. "All we need is the loan of a little money while I'm huntin' work."

"I can't give it to you," announced Rev. Smith Boyd firmly. "I've offered you, an opportunity to earn money, and you won't accept it. That ends my responsibility."

"You'd better take it, Frank," advised the woman, losing a little of the weakness of her voice.

"You tend to your own business!" advised Mr. Rogers in return. "You're supposed to run the house, and I'm supposed to earn the living! Reverend Boyd, if you'll lend me two dollars till a week from Saturday—"

"I told you no," and the rector started to leave the room.

There was a knock at the door. A thick-armed man with a short, wide face walked in, a pail in one hand and a scrubbing brush in the other. On the back of his head was pushed a bright blue cap, with "Sanitary Police" on it, in tarnished braid. Mr. Rogers stood up.

"What do you want?" he quite naturally inquired.

"Clean up," replied the sanitary policeman, setting down his pail and ducking his head at the rector, then mopping his brow with a bent forefinger, while he picked out a place to begin.

"Nothin' doin'!" announced Mr. Rogers, adame with the dignity of an outraged householder. "Good-night!" and he advanced a warning step.

The widest-set sanitary policeman paused in his survey long enough to wag a thick forefinger at the outraged householder.

Dinner Stories

A young couple had been courting for several years, and the young man seemed to be in no hurry to marry. Finally, one day, he said:

"Say, I canna marry thee."

"How's that?" asked she.

"I've changed my mind," said he.

"Well, I'll tell thee what we'll do," said she. "If folks know that it's these as has given me up I shanna be able to get another chap, but if they think I've given thee up, then I can get all I want. So we'll have a banquet published and when the wedding day comes the person will say to thee, 'Will thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?' and thou must say 'I will.' And when he says to me, 'Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?' I shall say, 'I wanna'."

The day came, and when the minister asked the important question, the man answered:

"I will."

Then the person said to the woman:

"Will thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?" I shall say, "I wanna'."

"Why," said the young man, furiously, "you said you would say, 'I wanna'."

"I know that," said the young woman, "but I've changed my mind since."

Elsie had been to the city on her first shopping expedition and at the last store had sorrowfully emptied the contents of her small purse. Coming home on the train, her fatherly slipper slipped a bright penny into the empty purse, with an eye to making his daughter's heart rejoice. Then behind the shelter of his paper, he watched his daughter until she chanced to open the purse.

Deeply perplexed, the generous parent drew a sobbing little daughter into the shelter of his arms, until at length she howled heartbrokenly: "Py, oh, py, didn't I spend it!"
